The Sensational Voice of

HANNAH BRADBEEER

Hannah starting recording and writing in music studios at the age of 16 and was nationally tipped to win the X Factor in 2008, when she reached the judges houses. A versatile female solo singer

Hannah works closely with well known guitarist and producer Kevin Armstrong, who has played for many of the world's leading rockstars from the 1980s to the present day.

Just recently a song they wrote and recorded named 'Head Up' won the Best Original Song competition on indie.com as the judges pick. When playing together, Hannah's explosive rich style, accompanied by his muscular and rhythmic guitar work, heard on countless records by David Bowie, Iggy Pop, Morrissey, Thomas Dolby is a touch of real class and emotive pop magic Hannah also works very closely with Darren Alboni, co-writer on Ella Hendersons Platinum selling album 'Chapter one' Hannah is just now in final production on her 'self penned' album "Tales of a Pheonix".
